ABOUT

Located on the remote island of Myken, 32 kilometres off the Helgeland coast in Northern Norway, Myken Distillery is the world's most remote whisky distillery and the first whisky distillery in the Arctic. Founded in 2014, the distillery creates handcrafted whisky and gin inspired by the sea, the wind, and the changing Arctic climate

Experiences at Myken Distillery

Visitors can join guided whisky tastings in the unique Whisky Cathedral, the distillery's barrel warehouse and tasting room. The experience combines whisky tasting with storytelling about the island, the distillery's history, and the influence of the Arctic environment on the maturation process. Guests can choose from different tasting options featuring a selection of Myken whiskies, from core expressions to limited editions.

For those wishing to stay longer, Myken also offers accommodation at The Still House, architect-designed seaside apartments where guests can enjoy the tranquillity of island life surrounded by the Arctic Ocean
